 - If you have ideas on Pearson messaging, let Glenn and TJ know, as they are going to Pearson for visit
- If colleges want to reach out to students prior to LINKS, it is fine to reach out to them ahead of time
- Working on PaCE Prep that can be integrated into LINKS to best get info from students, if we want to get it sooner, we can give them access in a different way
- Financial Aid letters come out mid-April, LINKS for fall admits opens mid-May

- Colleges should have list of who declared what major by next week
- Idea: several on-campus PaCE days for information seekers
 - Who will own it/organize it?
 - TJ will try to get people involved to get it organized between admissions/UF Online/NSFP
- Group chat sessions
 - Any colleges that want to participate are welcome – let Glenn know if you're interested
- Questions:
 - How will we know where in the process students are?
 - How will they be coded? What will their major codes be?
 - They will have UF Online cohort
 - Tracks will be unique
 - Will these students see all PaCE and UF Online tracks?
 - Yes
 - Can students defer?
 - No
 - Students may ask:
 - How many courses can I take at my home institution?
 - Is dual enrollment allowed?
 - Up to the college
 - According to Rick Wilder in Financial Aid, students are now able to receive aid at multiple institutions as long as they fill out their FLVC paperwork and it's an SUS or state college.
 - Would zero hours count as the second term?

- Who, at the UF level, is making the answers to these questions?
 - Send any of these questions to TJ and he will work to get answers to the group
